Each Luxor solar module is carefully produced by licensed partners, and its functions are subjected to strict internal quality controls. At the same time, this quality is regularly confirmed by independent testing institutes. In this way we guarantee that the Luxor modules meet the highest requirements and can withstand the toughest conditions.

To ensure that, we have developed our own manufacturing guidelines, which go beyond the most common standards in the industry. Thus, for example, each single Luxor module is specifically tested for cell fissures both before and after lamination.

The cells, too, must pass strict tests with regard to performance, micro cracks and visual look before they are given the Luxor rating. You can find more information about our quality guidelines under: www.luxor-solar.com/quality
